Using Annual Measurable Objectives to Scale Achievement Measures

Posted on December 12, 2013

Many districts are setting their 15 percent achievement measure scales in a way that provides guidance and additional standardization across schools. One way to do this is to set scales based on each school's AMOs. AMOs are useful for setting appropriate scales ...

The screenshot shows the TEAMTN website header. The logo "TEAMTN" is in large blue letters with three stars to the right. Below it, the text "Tennessee Educator Acceleration Model" and "A Tennessee Department of Education Website" are displayed. A search bar with the text "search here ..." and a "Go" button is in the top right. A horizontal navigation menu contains links: "Home", "Evaluation", "Non-Tested Grades & Subjects", "Policy & Guidance", "Training", "Innovation", "Resources", and "Contact Us". The "Policy & Guidance" link is highlighted with a red rectangular box, and a large red arrow points from this box down towards the text box below.

The 'Policy & Guidance' section of the website is the most dynamic section. It is the only section that will be updated on a weekly basis. Whenever there is new information to be shared, it will go in this section. There will be a blurb, along with links for any downloadable documents. Articles in this section may also include links to other sections of the website. Each article will be tagged with searchable words (Ex. Achievement, Growth, TVAAS, etc.) as well as the date to make them easy to find.

Teacher Perception Survey

Posted on January 21, 2014

This spring we will be administering a teacher perception survey in the districts participating in the revised administrator rubric pilot. The Teacher Perception Survey is aligned to the TI rubric to provide anonymous, timely, relevant, and thoughtful feedback.

While we will not be administering the survey in the districts that do not have other surveys, we will share the survey instrument. Use the link below to download the survey instrument. We will use the survey as we hope to continue refining the tool based on the feedback we receive.
